

Christmas 2016 - Children's Homily

I began by asking if any of the kids remembered my story about a little boy shining his mother's shoes. A couple did. I then asked what happened and no one did. I then told the story of the boy shining his mom's shoes and then she gave him a quarter. The next day she went to put on the shoes and in one was a lump. She pulled out a note from the boy, with the quarter attached. The note said "I done it for love." And that's what God did for us when He sent Jesus into our world. He gave us the best gift He could give and He done it because He loves us. I then asked the kids to do something for either their mom or dad and do it only out of love, not because they expect something in return.
